

Creative Deck GenOpp

People often complain about decks, that are very successful while boring and cheesy.

Now here is the idea of having a tourney format, where players are awarded a sort of bonus for their creativity. Creativity points (CRPs) are awarded in addition to normal TPs, and thus the winner will be the player of a successful deck with fresh ideas and not that often seen cards and combos.

Of course this rating for creativity is totally subjective. Thus this sort of tourney shouldn't be taken too seriously.

Normal tournament rules apply with the following additions:

After counting TPs at the end of the game each player awards 0, 1, 2 CRPs for the creativity of the deck of his opponent.

Also each player awards 0, 1, 2 CRPs for the opponent's style of playing his deck.

CRPs are noted extra on the tournament sheet and they are added to the normal TPs after each round.
